Eternity is likened to a cube of sand
A million miles square from which,
At the end of every million years,

Dear Beth -

It's really strange to write in people's yearbooks - people I've known for so many years - struggling through high school. Good luck at Princeton!

next year -

RAY GOODRICH

"Can we actually "know" the universe? My God, it's hard enough finding your way around in Chinatown. The point, however, is Is there anything out there? And why? And must they be so noisy? Finally, there can be no doubt that the one characteristic of "reality" is that it lacks essence. That is not to say that it has no essence but merely lacks it . (The reality I speak of here is the same one Hobbes described, but a little smaller ) Therefore the Cartesian dictum "I think, therefore I am" might better be expressed "Hey, there goes Edna with a saxophone!" So, then, to know a substance or an idea we must doubt it, and thus, doubting it, come to perceive the qualities it possesses in its finite state, which are truly "in the thing itself," or "of the thing itself," or of something or nothing '

For over the misty mountains cold
To dungeons deep and caverns old
We must away ere break of day
To seek the pale enchanted gold

The dwarves of yore made mighty spells
While hammers fell like ringing bells
In places deep, where dark things sleep
In hollow halls beneath the fells

For ancient king and elvish lord
There many a gleaming golden hoard
They shaped and wrought, and light they caught
To hide in gems on hilt of sword

True worth is in being, not seeming,
In doing, each day that goes by,
Some little good — not in the dreaming

And in spite of the fancies of youth,
There's nothing so kingly as kindness,

In the Night Room

There came a love
From the children's mouths
A heat arose,
And mixed many hearts
The eyes saw no man, unseen before
The ears heard signs,
Kings, the earth trembled, large trees,
The winds, not so much as the birds
In darkness or hidden in the night
Did seem to increase or their light was dimmed
As though each had seen from her own home
A touch, otherwise
Had embrace ye David

A Parable

A man approaches a palace. Its only entrance is guarded by some fierce Huns who will only let men named Julius enter. The man tries to bribe the guards by offering them a year's supply of choice chicken parts. They neither scorn his offer nor accept it, but merely take his nose and twist it till it looks like a molly screw. The man says it is imperative that he enter the palace because he is bringing the emperor a change of underwear. When the guards still refuse, the man begins to Charleston. They seem to enjoy his dancing but soon become morose over the treatment of the Navajos by the federal government. Out of breath, the man collapses. He dies, never having seen the emperor and owing the Steinway people sixty dollars on a piano he had rented from them in August.

Another Parable

I am given a message to deliver to a general. I ride and ride, but the general's headquarters seem to get farther and farther away. Finally, a giant black panther leaps upon me and devours my mind and heart. This puts a terrific crimp in my evening. No matter how hard I try, I cannot catch the general, whom I see running in the distance in his shorts and whispering the word "nutmeg" to his enemies.
